

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A wireless remote control device for notebook computers with the design of a touch pad and a glide pad is provided. On one hand, the user is allowed to control the power switch of the notebook computer providing security protection for the notebook computer by means of the touch pad; while on the other hand, the user can control the display panel pointer of the notebook computer by means of the glide pad facilitating convenience of operation.

* * * * *